American College Dance Festival

This spring, Saddleback College dancers performed at the American College Dance Festival, held at CSU Long Beach. They represented the college in two adjudicated performances, one created by faculty member Deidre Cavazzi, and one collaboratively choreographed by participating students. The students who attended the festival were Nicole Bower, Chris Bruder, Brittany Lockhart, Lauren Mangiapani, Edwin Monroy, and Crystal Shum. Jenna Barnes also assisted with choreography and staging in rehearsals leading up to the event. The students took four days of master classes, and had the opportunity to meet fellow dance students from colleges and universities from many different states.
Afterglow: An Evening of Dance and Light

Fifteen past and present Saddleback College dance students will be performing in a contemporary dance concert entitled Afterglow: An Evening of Dance and Light, in collaboration with ArchiTexture Dance Company to raise money for the Saddleback College Nursing Program and the Mission Hospital ICU; the performances are in memory of Saddleback student Kirsten Hopkin, who tragically passed away last December. She was an incredibly talented dancer and student choreographer, who had been featured in many concerts here on campus. She was also a student in the college's nursing program, and would have graduated this May. Kirsten worked at Mission Hospital and was cared for in the ICU at the end, and her graduating 2015 nursing class has also created an emergency fund to help student nurses in times of hardship--tickets for these performances will benefit both of these organizations in her memory. The performances will be held at [seven-degrees] in Laguna Beach canyon on Wednesday and Thursday July 29-30 at 7:30 PM.
