Is the Article Scholarly?

Author of the article: ____________________________

Title of the article: ______________________________

Title of the publication (journal, magazine, newspaper): ____________________________

Directions: Assign a point value (1-5) to the element under each criteria (1=Not so much, 5=Absolutely)

Purpose/Audience

- The article provides original research, data, or theories
- The purpose of the article is to inform, not to entertain or persuade
- The content of the article is for scholars and experts in a specific field or discipline, not for the general public

[ ] 5/15 points

Author's Expertise

- The author's credentials are listed (degrees earned, affiliations, etc.)
- The author has published within the specific field or discipline previously
- The author is an expert within the field or discipline (professional or academic)

[ ] 5/15 points

Article's Structure

- The structure of the article is organized in a specific format (abstract, introduction, methodology, discussion)
- The article is substantial in length
- The article contains statistics, charts, graphs, or data tables

[ ] 5/15 points

Sources/References Used

- The article cites many other experts/sources in the field or discipline
- The article contains an extensive bibliography/reference list at the end
- The article contains footnotes or an appendix with further readings

[ ] 5/15 points

Language Used

- The author uses highly technical language not geared for the general public
- The Author uses specific terms associated with field or discipline
- Opinions/theories presented are backed by evidence or research

[ ] 5/15 points

[ ] 75 points total

Where does your article fall?

0 | Popular Magazine or Newspaper | 75 | Peer-reviewed, Scholarly Journal