“College on Your Time” Schedule Offers Flexibility to Students

Mission Viejo, CA – A new session of eight-week classes will begin at Saddleback College on Monday, October 20th. The eight-week schedule, combined with late starting classes beginning on different dates throughout the semester, allows students flexibility to accommodate their work and personal schedules.

“With classes being held evenings and mornings, online and in person, Saddleback College works to help students go to college on their time,” stated Dr. Rajen Vurdien, Vice President of Instruction at Saddleback College.

Eight-week class offerings include transferrable classes such as anthropology and history, and career-oriented classes such as automotive technology and computer information management. Class times vary to accommodate students’ schedules.
