Author of “Stuff White People Like” to Speak at Saddleback College
Christian Lander will Challenge Guests to Question their Ideas about Stereotypes

Mission Viejo, CA – On Wednesday, February 2nd, Saddleback College’s Associated Student Government (ASG) will present An Evening with Christian Lander, founder and co-author of the popular website "Stuff White People Like" (http://stuffwhitepeoplelike.com/). The event, which will be held in the college’s McKinney Theatre at 6:00 p.m., is open to everyone and donation will be accepted at the door ($5 suggested for students, $10 for non-students). Lander will use humor and satire to encourage the audience to examine their own stereotypical beliefs, consider the impact of class, race, and diversity.

“ASG wants students to be able to laugh at their flaws and at things that are normally deemed as politically incorrect. We believe that people who are able to laugh at themselves, are more likely to grow as individuals,” said Sara Ghanbariami, Ambassador of Diversity Student Council.

In addition to founding the website, which receives about 300,000 hits per day, Lander is also the author of two books, Stuff White People Like: A Definitive Guide to the Unique Taste of Millions and Whiter Shades of Pale: The Stuff White People Like, Coast to Coast from Seattle’s Sweaters to Maine’s Microbrews.

Donations will go towards purchasing backpacks for foster children through the National CASA Association (http://www.casaforchildren.org).
